Envision Counselling and Support Centre Launches New Website

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: November 10, 2016

Southeast, Saskatchewan – Envision Counselling and Support Centre is excited to announce the launch of their new website. The resource based website is dedicated to supporting healthy choices in individuals, families, and communities by offering innovative programming and diverse counselling and support services.

“Considerable thought and effort went into enhancing our online presence, such as understanding the needs of those accessing our services online and deciding how to make the browsing process as efficient as possible” says Lynda Rideout, Assistant Executive Director at Envision who led the development of the new website.

The simplified website outlines Envision’s programming as well as upcoming events and current initiatives. The site continues to include various educational articles related to domestic violence and tools to increase self-growth in various areas. The updated website focuses on a cleaner, more user friendly approach to information sharing.

“Your website helped me get the information I needed when I was unable to make it to the office. It has a lot of great material on it” one website user relayed.

Envision has gained a new understanding of the importance of staying relevant in a rapidly evolving online world thanks to the recently completed Cyberviolence Project. The project created an awareness of how people are using the internet and guided the outline for the new website which Envision hopes will continue meeting the needs of the community.
